

Brief summary of Monica Justin Mollel's medical history as of May 4, 2026

She was born on October 10, 2024, in Arusha. Her father has been one of our loyal employees for many years.

She has a congenital heart defect in which a temporary blood vessel that diverts blood around the lungs during fetal development has not closed after birth. This causes the heart to work harder, which can lead to high blood pressure, lung disease, an enlarged heart and liver, and, in the worst case, heart failure.

She has been at the regional hospital in Arusha. She was hospitalized there for several days, but they then referred her to a hospital for heart patients in Dar es Salaam for further examinations. There, they determined that she urgently needs heart surgery, which costs 18,500 kr. The amount must be paid upon admission. Due to Monica's condition, the doctors insisted that she be given top priority. The hospital has a good reputation, so there are many people on the waiting list.

The amount mentioned covers only the surgery itself. There will be additional expenses for transportation, lodging, and meals.

Monica's parents are asking for support to pay for the surgery, as her health condition is unpredictable and fluctuates greatly from day to day.

The photos here show Monica in the hospital with an oxygen machine. It is actually not permitted to take photos of patients on hospital grounds, but we were able to obtain these two.

We hope that by working together, we can provide financial assistance to this family so that Monica can lead a normal life.

Her parents are very worried, and we sincerely hope that we can help them.
